

Saur

Established in 1933, SAUR is one of the three leading and reputable providers of outsourced services for local authorities in the water and waste management industries in France.

Since its inception SAUR has gradually and steadily developed its expertise, broadened its customer base to include both local authorities and industrial customers, and expanded its operations across France and overseas.

SAUR began its international development in the 1960s, first in Africa, and then in Europe, Asia and South America.

The Group's focus has shifted to consolidating its existing position in Europe -Poland, Spain, Scotland and Armenia- and boosting its growth in the GCC region (Gulf Cooperation Council), with primary focus on Saudi Arabia.

The signing of a partnership with the Saudi conglomerate Zamil Group, experts in maintenance and infrastructure management, resulted in Saur being awarded a contract for the management support of water and sewerage in the Holy city of Makkah and the city of Taif by the National Water Company (NWC). This management contract covers all services related to production and distribution of drinking water and sanitation.

More recently, Saur, through a common structure with Marafiq, operates and maintain the water, sewage and industrial cooling systems of Jubail industrial city. Saur provides the Kingdom all services related to production, distribution of drinking water and sanitation. Continuing its dynamic development in the region, Saur will open before end 2013 a regional office in Bahrain to reinforce its presence in Saudi Arabia and in the GCC countries.
