

Mansouria MokhefiHead of Middle East and North African program of IFRI, France

Doctor in History from the Institut d'Etudes Politiques, Paris, Mrs. Mansouria Mokhefi joined IFRI (French Institute of International Relations) in September 2010. She is currently the head of Middle East and North African program at the IFRI.

Born in Algeria, Mrs. Mansouria graduated in History from the Sorbonne, in International Relations from the IEP Paris, in Arabic and Islamic Civilization from the Institut National des Langues et Civilisations Orientales (INALCO). She also holds a Master's degree from New York University.

Mrs. Mansouria Mokhefi previously taught History and International Relations at Vassar College, New York, as well as Contemporary Maghreb at INALCO. She currently teaches at New York University – Paris. She's also associated researcher at The Université du Québec à Montréal (UQAM)

Mrs. Mansouria Mokhefi is member of the editorial board of "Politique étrangère", a journal of debate and analysis on major international issues published by the IFRI.